► Comic Con to feature a plethora of Star Trek officers, a Cylon, a quasi-Greek god, a warrior princess and ... wrestlers?

If you see a gang of people wearing hooded robes and carrying glowing swords around downtown this weekend, no need to panic.

Central Canada Comic Con is expected to draw more than 20,000 nerds, geeks and Trekkies to the Winnipeg Convention Centre, where the crazier your get-up is, the crazier the admiration.

Publicist Shelley Ostrove said over the years the convention has exploded in size.

"It started out as a small show, now it's the most successful in Winnipeg."

Ostrove credited the quality of the guests as the reason why the show keeps getting bigger.

"You look at who's coming.... Who wouldn't want to be there?"

Ostrove said the inclusion of Bret (The Hitman) Hart wasn't as far-fetched as it might sound.

"It's fairly common to see (wrestlers) at American comic cons," he said. "It's a value-added perk to going to the con, and a lot of people who are fans of sci-fi are wrestling fans."

Other exhibits include the original Batmobile, ECTO-1 from Ghostbusters, art classes and face and body painting, as well as related booths.

CFS seeks access to sealed files

► Child and Family Services wants to examine cases where care by their agencies was extended to adults

JAMES TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

Child-welfare officials want access to sealed internal case files in hopes of improving programs and services for kids who go on to receive care as adults.

The board of the General Child and Family Services has asked for an internal review to evaluate end results in cases where "extensions of care" were granted to former permanent wards of the four CFS agencies under its control.

The review seeks to examine adult portions of 167 files dating back from April 1, 2007 to Aug. 31 of this year, according to court filings obtained by Metro.

However, confidentiality provisions in Manitoba's child-welfare laws prevent

Service evaluation

The stated purpose of the CFS review:

- To ensure services are cost-effective.
- Identifying how to best serve youth as they leave CFS care.
- Discovering which services and programs lead to best outcomes.
- Improving access to services and programs.

case files from simply being handed over for study. That means the General Authority must seek court approval to view them. A hearing is set for Nov. 1.

Access to the files is necessary to paint an accurate picture, said General Authority CEO John C. (Jay) Rodgers, in a sworn statement. Rodgers is a former director of child welfare for the Manitoba government.

"The only other way to perform the evaluation ... would be by interviewing social workers with respect to their anecdotal recollections as to outcomes, which would be a far less reliable method of data collection," he stated.

Rodgers was unavailable for comment yesterday.

A part-time employee of the General Authority will conduct the study, according to the documents. She is a master's student in social work who must complete her practicum by March 2012, Rodgers said.

The review will be for internal use only and will not be made public, said Rodgers. As well, no youth will be identified, he added.

Recount confirms win by 21 votes

A judicial recount has confirmed an election night victory by the Manitoba New Democrats in the Kirkfield Park constituency.

The recount Thursday gave the NDP's Sharon Blady 21 more votes than Tory Kelly de Groot. That's five votes less than the election night count Oct. 4.

The result means the NDP maintains a strong majority, with 37 of the 57 legislature seats.

The Tories have 19 seats and the Liberals have one.

The only other seat to undergo a recount, St. Norbert, also remained under the New Democrats earlier this week. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Road chaos follows thick fog

Fog that could only be described as "pea-soup thick" blanketed Winnipeg Thursday morning, along with much of southern Manitoba, and likely contributed to a number of crashes on the Perimeter Highway.

RCMP Sgt. Line Karpish said as of 8 a.m. Thursday

Cloudy skies

► It was after lunch before the fog dissipated, leaving cloudy skies and above-normal temps of 9 C.

there had been three major accidents on the perimeter in the past half hour, and numerous vehicles were in the ditch.

"I'm told the roads are quite slick," she said, adding none of the collisions resulted in serious injuries.

Sgt. Karpish reminded drivers to slow down and drive to the conditions as we get closer to the winter season.

Two Agnes St. fires under investigation

► Thursday's house fire was second in three days on West End street ► Four people escaped earlier blaze

ELISHA DACEY
@METRONWS.CA

A three-storey home caught fire in the West End Thursday morning, just a few days after a similar fire down the street.

Witnesses say the Winnipeg Fire Department showed up to a home at 645 Agnes St. at about 5:10 a.m. Thursday and immediately began breaking windows and breaking down the front door.

A neighbour said due to Thursday's fog, there wasn't much to see. "We (could) see smoke but not much else," he said, adding he believed the house was vacant.

A spokesperson for the Winnipeg Police Service confirmed they were called out to the home before 5:30 this morning but could not give more details as officers were still on scene.

There was no immediate word on damage, injuries or the cause of the blaze.

Meanwhile, police still have no further details on a fire that happened in the 200 block of Agnes Tuesday morning.

Winnipeg police say the fire broke out at about 2:10 a.m. Tuesday morning and gutted the home. Smoke and fire damage could be seen from the outside, especially on the two upper stories on the older home.

Damage appeared to have been contained to the home and not to neighbouring houses.

Four people living in the home escaped the blaze safely.

The investigation continues by the Major Crimes Unit. Anyone with information is asked to call police.

TWO SUSPECTS SOUGHT

Woman manages to escape would-be car thieves

A woman was not seriously hurt after two men threatened her near her car and demanded a ride.

Winnipeg Police said the woman, 49, parked her Dodge Caravan on Selkirk Avenue near Andrews Street at about 6:20 Wednesday morning. When she got out, two men approached her, initially asking her for a "light."

When she said she didn't have one and tried to walk away, one of the men stepped in her way and pushed her, demanding a ride. When she tried to walk away again, the suspect assaulted her in the upper body, continuing to demand a ride.

The woman managed to get into her vehicle and lock the doors. When she tried to drive away, one man stepped in front of the van and the two men kicked and punched her vehicle. She eventually managed to escape and the men ran. She was not seriously injured, and the vehicle suffered minor damage.

Police are on the lookout for two men, about 20 years old and Aboriginal in appearance. The first is described as 5'5", husky build with a chubby face, short black hair, dark eyes, unshaven and wearing dark clothing. The second is described as having a thin build and wearing dark clothing.

Winnipeg's tricks and treats for Halloween

- ▶ Tip-toe around a haunted tour, turn circles in a corn maze or get spooked by sounds from an eerie orchestra
- ▶ Plenty of fun can be shared with family this weekend as the city transforms into a haunted extravaganza

There's plenty to do for Halloween in Winnipeg this year, whether you're looking for a trick or a treat.

Halloween Howl:

The Children's Museum is offering their Halloween Howl on Saturday, where you can explore "boo-tified" galleries, take part in activities, make a few creepy crafts or just have fun. Tickets are $12, and the party runs from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Historical Haunted Winnipeg Tour:

Take a two-and-a-half hour tour of the most haunted places in Winnipeg, including the Via Rail Train Station, the Vaughan Street Jail, the Burton Cummings Theatre and many more. Tickets are $39.30 and the next tour is Friday.

Safeway Boo at the Zoo:

One of Winnipeg's most popular Halloween destinations, this year is no exception as Boo at the Zoo at Assiniboine Park Zoo has seen a 150 per cent upsurge in attendance. Tickets are $12 at the gate and it runs until Sunday.

Winnipeg Ghost Walk:

Want to know where the most haunted building in Winnipeg is? The folks at the Winnipeg Ghost Walk know! The walk Saturday through Monday night at 8 p.m. and tickets are just $10.

The Phantom of the Music Hall:

Get into the creepy spirit at the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra's latest concert for kids. Children are encouraged to dress up for the Sunday concert, featuring madcap music and puppets.

Tickets available through the WSO Box Office.

Downtown Swing Out Halloween Masquerade:

It's a mouthful, but it will also be a lot of fun at the Exchange Community Church on Albert Street. Tickets are $10 and the party happens on Saturday at 8 p.m.

The Haunted Forest:

Experience the thrill and terror of A Maze in Corn's The Haunted Forest, a separate event from the regular corn maze.

The guided tour will run Saturday and Sunday and tickets are $15.

Murray's Maze:

The Halloween Maze is up and running at Boonstra Farms in Stonewall. Tickets are $12 for a spooky adventure through the maze, and it runs until Sunday at 6 p.m.

Halloween Party:

The Oak Hammock Marsh Interpretive Centre has a family-oriented day planned for Sunday, including pumpkin decorating, a costume parade, scavenger hunts, face painting and more. Regular admission rates apply.

Violent robber to be watched while free

Winnipeg police and Manitoba justice officials hope a rarely sought-after court order will keep a violent former street gang member in check now that he's soon to leave prison.

Eric Sinclair, 30, is set to leave prison after serving a four-and-a-half year sentence for robbery and aggravated assault. Police and prosecutors prepped for his release by asking a judge for a peace bond order against him.

Officials say they want to keep an eye on Sinclair believing he may violently reoffend.

"Mr. Sinclair has been described as an individual who is easily frustrated, which then quickly transforms into aggression and violence," a Correctional Service of Canada report from 2010 said.

The report goes on to say the former Indian Posse member left the gang while in his teens. While in prison, safety concerns kept him out of general population, the report states.

"This prisoner has distanced himself from the gangs," Crown attorney John Field told court at a hearing this week.

Sinclair is due to walk free from Stony Mountain Institution on Nov. 4.

Judge Lynn Stannard approved a two-year-long peace bond.

Conditions of the bond include a 12 a.m. to 7 a.m. daily curfew for the first year, a requirement he abstain from consuming alcohol or drugs and participation in violence-prevention programming if probation officers deem it necessary.

Lotto winner credits security after $90K win

► Ticket bought at Tempo station on Inkster Blvd

@METRONEWS.CA

He says he's been playing the same lotto numbers for 25 years and never winning much of anything but a few bucks here and there.

But now, the 61-year-old is crediting lottery security measures for allowing him to claim Lotto 6/49 winnings of more than $90,000 after a gas bar clerk allegedly stole his ticket and tried to claim it as his own.

"Hats off to Manitoba Lotteries — they certainly did their job," the winner said in a telephone interview yesterday. He did not want to be identified.

Winnipeg police have said the man bought a lottery ticket on July 14 that was valid for five draws. After not winning anything for the first two draws, he had his tickets checked at a gas bar in the Maples.

A clerk scanned the ticket and informed the man he had won $5. The clerk returned the validation slip and gave the man his $5, but allegedly kept the ticket, which was still valid for two more draws, police said.

"I thought the ticket was done," he said.

The next week the ticket won $90,641.40. Police allege the employee went to the lotteries office on Aug. 2 claiming to be the winner. The Western Canada Lottery Corporation notified Manitoba Lotteries due to some inconsistencies and an investigation was launched.

"(Lottery officials) knew the ticket belonged to me," he said.

He said he does wonder, however, if somehow the suspect simply made a mistake.

"It might have been an error on his part," he said.

Upon learning of his win, the man said he was "surprised" and "pretty excited." He said some of the winnings have gone toward a new car and projects around his home.

The winner said he would not follow the criminal case as it winds through the courts. "It has nothing to do with me," he said.

Ashwinder Singh, 31, was formally charged this week with theft under $5,000 and fraud over $5,000. He returns to court Nov. 22.

Air Canada passenger out on bail

A man accused of causing a disturbance on an Air Canada flight from Alberta to Toronto, which forced the plane to land in Winnipeg, has been released on bail.

Byron Pinksen of Grande Prairie, Alta., appeared in a Winnipeg court where he was remanded to Nov. 28 and Nov. 30 on several federal and provincial charges.

The incident occurred Tuesday.

Police say a man who boarded the aircraft in Edmonton was loud and belligerent and refused directions from the crew to quiet down.

Police say he had a bottle of liquor that had not been bought on board and also attempted to light a cigarette.

Hey Gen Y: Let's talk about text

- Some experts fear demise of live conversations may mean fewer ideas
- Occupy Wall Street takes note

ELISABETH BRAW
@METRO.LU

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Jari Lompolo, a Finnish 20-year-old, has plenty of friends. But he rarely talks to them. Instead he types.

"I send about 50 text messages per day, and send Facebook messages," he explains. "I only call them if there's something urgent."

You can probably relate. You have friends you text, ones you email, some you call. "New media platforms are providing greater freedom for decisions about who to converse with, what those conversations are about, where and when conversations can happen, and how to have them," notes Gabriel Harp, research manager for Technology Horizons at the Institute for the Future.

But the migration to the keyboard poses a danger, warns Sherry Turkle, a professor of social sciences at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology: "Teenagers want the control that comes with texting or being able to 'compose' an instant message. This means that they are learning how to 'perform' — in a profile, as an avatar — but not (how to) respond to the give-and-take of conversation."

The disconnect bleeds into many fields. Toronto acting coach Erynn Brook notes: "It's extremely difficult to get younger actors to connect with their scene partners. Their ability to read subtle cues in body language and tone of voice, and to adapt to the person they're speaking with in a scene, has taken a dive in the past eight years."

She makes them have a real-life conversation once a day.

That's exactly what the Occupy Wall Street protesters are doing. The movement was organized online. But because they were aware that texting, tweeting and Facebooking are not enough, they've created real-life forums, called general assemblies, to discuss ideas.

But we still love to chat

According to new research by Prof. Robin Dunbar, director of Oxford University's Institute of Social and Cultural Anthropology, we're more satisfied with interaction in person or on Skype calls than via social media, email and text messages.

"Face-to-face conversations and Skype video calls provide immediate visual cues, which are very important when we humans communicate with each other," she says. "And you have laughter, an extremely important social cue."

"PEOPLE WILL LOOK BACK AND SAY, 'THEY SPOKE SO WELL'"

Geoffrey Nunberg is a professor of linguistics at the University of California, Berkeley, School of Information.

Teenagers text and Facebook instead of talking. Will they lose their ability to speak?

No. Every generation just assumes that the language of teenagers is getting worse. The one thing you can be certain of is that in 50 years people will look back and say, "They spoke so well."

Won't years of text messages affect our speech?

People have always written and spoken poorly. We just think they spoke well because all the junk has been thrown away.

What will happen to all the deep conversations young people used to have?

Social media is a rebirth of the mail system we had in the 19th century. People wrote frequent notes to each other, because the mail was delivered several times a day. The 20th century brought radio and TV, and people started writing less. Social media have restored writing.

Seven billion and counting

► The Earth can feed our exploding population, but not our way of life

ELISABETH BRAW

METRO WORLD NEWS

On Oct. 31, the world's 7,000,000,000th resident is expected to make an entrance. The United Nations Population Fund has invited every country to designate one "seven billion baby" whose arrival will be feted. But the milestone is hardly cause for celebration.

The UNFPA says the world is adding 78 million people a year, with 97% of that growth in developing countries. Scientists project food and water shortages and other disasters.

"The problem is the consumption that the growing population will engage in," says David Satterthwaite of the International Institute for Environment and Development. "The Earth can feed seven billion people, and they will live well. But it can't cope with seven billion people who all want to drive cars and travel by plane."

In fact, new research suggests the world can easily feed its population. "We can even feed nine billion people, and do so sustainably," says Johan Rockstrom, an expert in natural resource management at Stockholm University. "Increasing grain yields would solve 50% of the projected food shortage. We should also stop feeding primary foods like grains to animals and eat it ourselves."

Driving less, eating less meat: The Earth's well-being would be good for our waistlines, too. And, Satterthwaite says: "We can't tell China and India's growing middle classes to change their behaviour if the West doesn't."

Watchdog sees red over spying plan

► Provisions allowing authorities access to Internet information without court approval raise concern

The federal privacy watchdog says government plans to make electronic surveillance easier for police and spies must include stronger public protections.

In a letter to the public safety minister, Privacy Commissioner Jennifer Stoddart warns against simply resurrecting a trio of previous federal bills to expand surveillance powers.

Stoddart tells Vic Toews these pieces of legislation, which were never passed, endangered privacy.

"In brief, these bills went far beyond simply maintaining investigative capacity or modernizing search powers," says the letter, her latest expression of concern about the proposed measures.

"Rather, they added significant new capabilities for investigators to track, and search and seize digital information about individuals."

The issue, which has arisen periodically since the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, pits the desire of intelligence and law-enforcement officials to have easier access to information about people online against the individual's right to privacy.

Toews wasn't available Thursday to discuss the coming legislation. However, his office said the government will strike an appropriate balance between necessary investigative powers and the protection of privacy.

Two pulled from quake 'tombs'

► Thursday: Rescuers cheer as 18-year-old emerges from rubble after four days

► Friday: More than 100 hours after a town was flattened, a 13-year-old victim is saved

Two astonishing rescues have stirred relief workers' hearts in the aftermath of Turkey's devastating earthquake.

Early Friday, rescuers working under floodlights pulled a 13-year-old boy alive from the rubble of a collapsed apartment building — more than 100 hours after the massive quake levelled many buildings in eastern Turkey.

A picture by the state-run Anatolia news agency showed a rescue team in Ercis carrying Ferhat Tokay out of the debris, wearing a neck brace.

In other pictures from a field hospital, he appeared conscious and looking at his rescuers.

Tokay's rescue came 108 hours after the quake.

The agency said the boy was injured but did not give further details.

On Thursday, TV footage showed a rescue team cheering and clapping as another young man, wearing a red sweater and strapped to a stretcher, was also carried out of the debris. His eyes were shut but he opened them at one point.

The Anatolia agency identified the man as 18-year-old Imdat Padak.

Padak was flown to the nearby city of Van and was dehydrated, but in good condition.

Emergency officials said 187 people have been rescued from the rubble.

Canucks just laugh at raging Rina

Call it the Canuck fighting spirit.

Tourists scrambled Thursday to leave the popular Mexican tourist destination of Cancun ahead of tropical storm Rina.

But Canadians who call the town home were calmly bracing for what they consider a routine bout of severe weather.

"We know what we have to do and we just do (it)," said Kelly McLaughlin, a former Toronto resident.

"Nobody seems to panic — except perhaps people who are new to the area."

McLaughlin, 40, said she has weathered more than a few storms on the Yucatan Peninsula.

"Those of us who have been there, done that, we're trying to keep everybody calm and say, 'Yeah, relax. This isn't going to be anything.'"

But some foreigners saw things differently.

Toronto resident Paolo Del Nibletto managed to make his way back to Canada via three flights routed through the U.S.

"We just got lucky," said 44-year-old Del Nibletto.

Rina was downgraded from a hurricane.

Occupy is the latest catchphrase

Occupy Wall Street, meet Occupy the Bar.

The nearly six-week-old social protest in Manhattan has inspired campaigns, headlines and spoofs that often have nothing to do with income inequality or challenging corporate overlords: Occupy the NBA and Occupy the Bathroom are just a couple.

Turns out that the same open-source nature of Occupy Wall Street that inspired Occupy London, Occupy Muncie and other protests worldwide makes it easy to co-opt the catchphrase for non-revolutionary aims.

Many Occupy "movements" live only on the web, like Occupy the Bar: "What do we want? An ice cold Guinness! When do we want it? Now!"

The police action in at least two U.S. states this week has put other Occupy protest camps across the U.S. on edge.

Olsen has become a rallying cry, with demonstrators in the original Occupy Wall Street camp in New York City marching in support of their counterparts in Oakland and a movement website declaring, "We are all Scott Olsen."

In Las Vegas, a few dozen protesters held a vigil for Olsen. A handful of police officers attended.

WHEAT BOARD

Group tries to block lawsuit

A Western farm group is trying to block the Canadian Wheat Board from going to court over the federal government's plan to strip the board of its monopoly powers.

The Western Canadian Wheat Growers have hired their own lawyers and will seek an injunction to would stop the wheat board from proceeding.

Wheat Growers President Kevin Bender says the wheat board is misusing farmers' money to fight the government.

On Wednesday, wheat board chairman Allen Oberg made good on his promise to go to court to fight the legislation introduced last week.

He says the way Agriculture Minister Gerry Ritz is proceeding is illegal and violates the Canadian Wheat Board Act in the way it strips the board of its monopoly over marketing western wheat and barley.

Deficit may last longer

► Bank predicts slowdown will delay balanced budget until 2016

Two more years

TD Bank calculated that Ottawa is likely to still be $5.2 billion in the hole in 2014-15, and will record a $1.8-billion deficit the following year. The surplus in 2016-17 will be an equally tiny $2.5 billion.

The federal government may need two more years to balance its budget than it originally predicted, says a new analysis that takes into account weakening economic conditions.

During this spring's election campaign, the Harper government announced it would be able to balance the budget in 2014-15, thanks to a new cost-cutting initiative intended to find $11 billion over four years.

But the TD Bank's analysis taking into account new, more subdued growth projections for the economy suggests that even if Ottawa books all the savings from departmental cuts, it likely won't be enough.

"The private sector consensus is for a more modest economic profile for Canada relative to where things stood," at the time of the budget, the bank said.

"In the absence of any new fiscal restraint measures, there is a risk that the federal government will return to budgetary balance in 2016-17, two years later than previously estimated."

Whether Finance Minister Jim Flaherty meets the hard target may be more a political prerequisite than an economic necessity, given that at the end of the planning horizon the annual shortfalls in the TD calculations represent a mere 0.3 per cent and 0.1 per cent of the size of the economy, respectively. By comparison, the 2009-10 deficit was 3.6 per cent of GDP.

► Minister of Finance Jim Flaherty says Ottawa is on track to balance "in the medium term."

"The size of the deficit is so small as a share of the economy, it really is not a source of concern and so there is not need to introduce additional fiscal restraint," said TD's chief economist Craig Alexander, who met with the minister earlier in the week.

1 Rob Ford “ambushed”! Toronto’s mayor dialed 911 Monday morning after he was the “victim” of an early-morning “ambush” by Mary Walsh from CBC’s satirical show “This Hour Has 22 Minutes.” Dressed as her alter-ego character Marg Delahunty, Warrior Princess, she came to Ford’s home to ask about his sinking polls. Ford’s brother Doug hadn’t heard of Margaret Atwood, so maybe he hadn’t heard of Mary Walsh? Or satire?

2 Phil Kessel: If you’re looking for a bandwagon to jump on right now Leafs Nation, try Phil Kessel’s. The Toronto Maple Leaf right winger is off to a blazing start and leads the NHL in both goals and points. Things are going so well for him — finally — that he’s decided to join the Twitter universe (@pkessel81), and already is nearing 30,000 followers.

3 Steve Jobs biography: Steve Jobs, a just-released biography of the Apple co-founder by Walter Isaacson, says Jobs came up with the company’s iconic name while he was on a diet of fruits and vegetables, on his “frutitarian diet.” Jobs thought the name sounded “fun, spirited and not intimidating.” I’m naming my next company Bananas.

4 You’re Not Alone: With suicide being the second leading cause of teen deaths in Canada, Ontario Shores Centre for Mental Health Sciences (OntarioShores.ca) has introduced a wonderful new adolescent mental-health-awareness curriculum. 6 Buffalo in Toronto: This Sunday, Canada gets another taste of what it would be like to have an NFL franchise, when the Buffalo Bills play a “home” game against the Washington Redskins at Rogers Centre. While the response to this Bills series in TO has been largely indifferent in recent years, it should be much fuller for the re-energized 4-2 Bills than it’s been for Argos games this year. The “Argooooos” are 4-12.

7 Best inexpensive vinos: A new book with the great title Unquenchable: A Tippy Quest for the World’s Best Bargain Wines was released this week by renowned Canadian food writer Natalie MacLean. COWGIRL GETS HER DUE. Sandra Day O’Connor made her mark in history as the first woman to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court, but she’s still a hardworking cowgirl at heart, she said Wednesday.

An exhibit about her life opens this week at the National Cowgirl Museum and Hall of Fame in Fort Worth, a tribute to the 30th anniversary of her appointment to the high court.

“It is odd that a cowgirl ended up on the court, isn’t it?” she said Wednesday, joking that her 1981 nomination by president Ronald Reagan stemmed from his own love of ranching. “Probably because I had grown up on the back of a horse, he had more interest in me than other candidates.”

O’Connor, 81, an El Paso native, spent summers on her family’s Arizona ranch. She said her time on the ranch taught her responsibility and how to solve problems on her own.

“Cowboys don’t spend a lot of time telling you things. They just expect you to get things done and done right,” O’Connor said. “But it’s a great way to grow up.”

Synopsis

With a plot that mixes themes from history and Shakespeare's plays, Anonymous uses the backdrop of the struggle for succession between the Tudors and the Cecils as the Essex rebellion moves against Queen Elizabeth I (Vanessa Redgrave) to set the scene for the debut of Shakespeare's plays. But were they actually written by Shakespeare? The movie supposes it was Edward De Vere, Earl of Oxford (Rhys Ifans), who penned plays attributed to William Shakespeare.

Ratings:

Richard: ●●●●●
Mark: ●●●●

▶ Pageantry geeks will swoon for the production design in Anonymous.

To see, or not to see

▶ Anonymous stumbles in places, but there's plenty for theatre buffs to swoon over

Richard: Mark, this is a sprawling story with many twists and turns. The downside is the film's sketchy casting. In flashbacks the queen and Edward appear to be the same age, but later after a major twist, are revealed to be 16 years apart. This kind of lack of attention to detail makes it difficult to follow the story in the first hour. Soon enough, however, all the players are straightened away and the pleasures of the story take hold.

MB: Sorry, but is the authorship of Shakespeare's plays a burning issue for anyone? Whenever they try to make Shakespeare 'sexy'

I want to hurl. And yet, there were a lot of things to like about the movie. Pageantry geeks will swoon for the production design, theatre buffs will groove to the re-creations of the Elizabethan stage, and middle age women will get hot flashes at all the bodice ripping. But why was the story so hard to follow?

RC: It's hard to follow because it assumes we know the political history and can juggle an abundance of powdered wigs with royal titles, many of whom kind of look alike. Having said that though, I think Ifans is terrific here. A little of him usually goes a long way but he's doing some interesting work here.

MB: Is it racist to say that all British fops in the same facial hair look alike? I hope not ... You're right about Ifans — he's the soul of a very messy movie and anchors it with his sad eyes. Lots of good acting, (David Thewlis, Joely Richardson, and Sebastian Armesto as Ben Johnson) and lots of good overacting, too, from the rest of the cast. One of the things that will jolt most viewers is the way Shakespeare himself is portrayed — as a murderous, scheming, illiterate; so antithetical to our reverence for the man that I found it quite un-nering.

RC: I don't think Anonymous has much to do with historical fact — there is no real life evidence that the Earl of Oxford penned the plays — it's just a palette for a twisted tale about how politics and art intersect, and the written word's ability to instigate change.

MB: I know that's what the movie aims for, but it doesn't quite pull it off. There are two stories here: one is a literary biopic, the other a political thriller, and they don't exactly mesh. But I think it's a movie that would become clearer after a second viewing.

Puss in Boots*Genre: Animation/ComedyDirector: Chris MillerStars: Antonio Banderas, Salma Hayek

A spin-off of the Shrek series, Puss in Boots returns Antonio Banderas to the character he was born to voice. An outlaw cat with Latin attitude, Puss seeks out riches in magic beans that grow into that fabled giant beanstalk that leads to the goose that lays golden eggs. While the plot and forced parody of fairy tale folklore could use some refinement, most characters, slick animation and the Zorro-like adventure keep Puss purring along.

The film explores a clash of cultures in a small Quebec village that thrives on its language school to keep the community afloat. If that sounds like a pitch for a new CBC-funded sitcom, it's not far off. In fact, it may have worked as such. But as a film, this attempt to capitalize on the language divide using a bundle of Canadian celebs is half-baked. ● STEVE GOW

The Rum Diary*Genre: DramaDirector: Bruce RobinsonStars: Johnny Depp, Giovanni Ribisi, Aaron Eckhart

On paper, the Rum Diary sounds like a can't-miss film: Johnny Depp taking on another semi-autobiographical Hunter S. Thompson character, with counterculture director Bruce Robinson coming out of a long and happy retirement to bring it to life. Unfortunately, there wasn't an equally impressive editor on board to keep the two in line as they pay tribute to the late Thompson. Based on a manuscript left hidden in the author's attic until he and Depp found it and decided to publish it, the Rum Diary is a bit all over the place and unpolished as a book. And it appears a reverence for Thompson kept the filmmakers from addressing those problems in the transition to the screen.

He may be able to sing and dance but Justin Timberlake is no movie star and In Time is proof of that. A sci-fi thriller that stalls in the

Murphy, Stiller live up to tall order in Heist

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

It's hard to believe that two of the most prominent figures in modern comedy, Eddie Murphy, 50, and Ben Stiller, 45, hadn't crossed paths before their most recent release, Tower Heist.

But not surprisingly, the two were anxious to work together for this movie, which was largely improvised. "The comedy comes out of the characters so for me, I wasn't looking to see how funny I could be," Stiller says.

"And then of course when you have Eddie Murphy in the movie, it takes a lot of the pressure off. I was really happy he was in the film. I never look to be funnier because that just doesn't work. Does that make sense?"

Stiller pauses in front of a packed room of journalists mocking himself with an imaginary headline. "Stiller: Not Looking to be Funnier. Maybe he should," he says.

Murphy had the original idea for Tower Heist years ago, though it's since been given a very timely twist.

It centres around a Bernie Madoff-like businessman (played by Alan Alda) who swindles his employees out of their pensions. Angered by the fraud, some rogue vigilantes out of the group devise a plan to steal the money back. Given that the 'Occupy' movement persists in the U.S. and elsewhere, Stiller noted the connection between the film and the headlines.

"I think there's a lot of frustration out there that's valid and that's probably what the Occupy Wall Street is an expression of," he says.

"There's a lot of frustration in terms of where we're at in this economic situation and so I understand where it's coming from."

But don't get them wrong. Tower Heist is no grim exploration of dire economic times. With the ensemble cast that includes Casey Affleck, Matthew Broderick, Michael Pena and Gabourey Sidibe, there were many spontaneously hilarious moments in the film.

▶ Ben Stiller and Eddie Murphy work together for the first time in Tower Heist.

'I just fell on my face': Tyler

► Steven Tyler

► Aerosmith frontman denies any kind of alcohol or drug relapse

► Says he had food poisoning

Steven Tyler had a painful fall in his hotel room while on tour in Paraguay, but he insists it was food poisoning and not a relapse.

"I started to get sick, and I just fell on my face," he says in an interview with The Today Show. "I just passed out."

The American Idol judge and Aerosmith frontman, who has battled drug and alcohol dependence in the past, understands why some people won't believe his story.

"I get that people think that," he says. "It still bothers me a little, but it's something that I have to have to deal with for the rest of my life."

MJ still raking in money

Michael Jackson has topped Forbes magazine's list of top-earning dead celebrities.

The King of Pop brought in approximately $170 million between October 2010 and October 2011, according to the popular magazine.

And while the Jackson estate earned more than $100 million the previous year — when The King of Pop also took the top spot on this list — he's still far ahead of Elvis Presley.

Presley took second place this year with $55 million.

SNOOKI'S WORDS OF (AHEM) WISDOM

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

I'm going to send you into the weekend with two bits of depressing information.

1. Snooki is a New York Times bestseller for this year's magnum opus, A Shore Thing.

2. She has yet another book out called Confessions of a Guidette, which promises to help you join the Snooki Style Revolution (considering she looks like a bad witch Oompa-Loompa, this is one revolution I will not be signing up for).

So for your reading pleasure, here are some outtakes of this work of art, which Snooki is currently promoting.

"A guidette has to know

► Nicole (Snooki) Polizzi

how to have fun anywhere. Like, if you're stuck in a cardboard box, you have to rock it."

"LOVE my slippers. It's like wearing beds on your feet." "If you can smell hair gel from a mile away, it signals guido mating season."

If I'm stuck in a cardboard box, I'd probably yell for help instead of trying to rock out. But then again, I'm not a best-selling author, so what do I know?

Healthy Treats

Here are ideas from the Mayo Clinic for a healthier Halloween:

- Allow your kids to swap candy for a special toy, game or movie night.
- Hand out healthier treats like sugar-free gum.
- Focus on activities such as creating costumes and carving pumpkins instead of candy.

Drink and be very scary

PETER ROCKWELL

While Justin Timberlake and the guys from The Lonely Island are today's golden boys of Saturday Night Live, I remember when Dan Aykroyd ruled. I met Mr. Ghostbuster and he's a cool guy with a knack for marketing—especially when it comes to booze.

Though available all year long, his hard liquor masterpiece Crystal Head Vodka ($44.98 - $59.95) is the ultimate adult indulgence at Halloween.

Conceived as an ode to whatever they were talking about in that last Indiana Jones movie, the made in Newfoundland spirit is quadruple-distilled and triple-filtered through Herkimer diamond crystals. Sure, the gemstone filtration is a gimmick, but the vodka is smooth and sophisticated with a light touch of anise-like flavour. Did I mention it comes in a funky skull-shaped bottle?

Ice it up and shoot it straight or mix it in your favourite cocktail recipe. Either way, this crystal is way ahead of the competition in the lucrative ultra-premium vodka market and it's Canadian.

Graveyard Goop

Devilishly delicious dip

► This Halloween treat does double duty: It'll fill up the goblins and ward off vamps with its hint of garlic

DINNER EXPRESS

EMILY RICHARDS
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

Set the scary mood by serving your family and guests a dip that is dangerously delicious.

Leave out the eye of newt and toe of frog and add a hint of cumin and a clove of garlic to the recipe for Grave Yard Goop.

Buttering and baking the flour tortillas will make the dipping 'tombstones' sweet and savoury.

This frightfully delightful dip is sure to help ward off vampires and creatures of the night as well.

Preparation:

1 In food processor, puree beans until fairly smooth. Add cream cheese, onions and cream and puree until smooth. Pulse in Cheddar cheese, garlic and cumin until combined.

2 Spread the mixture into 9 or 10-inch (23 or 25 cm) pie plate and sprinkle olives in centre. Sprinkle lettuce around edges. Then cover and refrigerate it for at least 30 minutes.

3 Preheat oven to 400°F (200°C). Cut out ghostly shapes like tombstones, cats and pumpkins out of flour tortillas. Brush with butter and place on large baking sheet. Bake for about 8 minutes or until just golden. Let cool completely.

4 Place some toasted tortillas into the dip to create a graveyard scene and serve remaining ones alongside. EMILY RICHARDS FOR DAIRYGODNESS.CA (EMILY IS A PROFESSIONAL HOME ECONOMIST, COOKBOOK AUTHOR AND A TV CELEBRITY CHEF. FOR MORE, VISIT EMILYRICHARDSCOOKS.CA)

Ingredients:

- 1 can (19 oz/540 mL) black beans, drained and rinsed
- ½ cup (125 mL) Canadian cream cheese, softened
- ¼ cup (50 mL) finely diced onion
- ¼ cup (50 mL) 5% light, 10% half-and-half or 18% table cream
- ¾ cup (175 mL) shredded Canadian Cheddar cheese
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- ½ tsp (2 mL) ground cumin
- 1 can (200 mL) ripe sliced olives, drained and rinsed
- ½ cup (125 mL) shredded romaine lettuce or baby spinach
- 4 small whole grain flour tortillas

Offensive fireworks in Philly

► Captain Ladd scores winner as Jets top Flyers ► Seven-game road trip begins with bang

Andrew Ladd scored the game-winner with 1:06 remaining on a one-timer from close range to lift the Winnipeg Jets to a wild 9-8 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers on Thursday night.

Fifteen players scored in the wide-open game in which both clubs set season highs for goals scored and goals allowed, and the Jets tied a franchise record for goals in a game.

Philadelphia's Danny Briere and James van Riemsdyk were the only multiple goal scorers with two apiece. Kimmo Timonen had four assists and Scott Hartnell added a goal and assist. Claude Giroux and Max Talbot also scored for the Flyers.

Nik Antropov and Tanner Glass each had a goal and two assists for the Jets. Evander Kane and Alex Burmistrov each added a goal and an assist and Blake Wheeler had three assists for Winnipeg.

The Flyers came within striking distance of the club mark for goals, and both teams were close to marks for goals allowed.

The 17 goals matched a Philadelphia record for combined goals in a game.

Incredibly, the teams combined for five goals in the first 4:31 of the third period.

Philadelphia's franchise record for goals in a game is 13.

The Jets/Thrashers mark for goals allowed in a game is 10, set Jan. 18, 2008 at Buffalo.

The Flyers trailed 6-4 entering the third period before scoring three straight goals in the first 3:02, capped by Briere's second tally of the game, to take a 7-6 lead.

But the Jets quickly rebounded with a pair of goals in the next 1:29 to go ahead 8-7.

After van Riemsdyk tied it 8-8 with 3:39 left, Ladd took a pass from Wheeler from behind the net and put Winnipeg ahead for good with 1:06 left.

Sports in brief

Canada's women's soccer team claimed its first Pan American Games gold medal in dramatic fashion Thursday.

Christine Sinclair scored in the 88th minute to tie the score 1-1 as Canada went on to a 4-3 shootout win over Brazil, a welcome boost to a team coming off a heartbreaking performance at the women's World Cup.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Forgive yourself for the mistakes you have made. Be positive: It's about tomorrow, not yesterday.
♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 If other people don't seem interested in what you are doing, don't try to force them to take notice.
♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You are usually so full energy that no one can begrudge you an off day.
♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Today's Jupiter-Pluto link endows you with bags of confidence. Before you know it, the universe will be delivering great things to you.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 The planets urge you to remember everything works out for the best in the end.
♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Make an effort to explain things to people who don't seem to grasp the basics as fast as you. All they need is a nudge in the right direction.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 As Jupiter is moving retrograde, you would be wise not to take anything for granted, especially money.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 With the Sun in your sign alongside Venus and Mercury, your heart and mind are on the same lofty level.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Your enemies are no more than phantoms of your overactive imagination, so stop worrying. Smile.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You will find it impossible to get angry with people today, no matter how badly they treat you.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You breeze through life with the greatest of ease. Bring light into others' lives today.
♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 One of your best times of the year is under way. Use it to expand your awareness. SALLY BROMPTON
